Help families in need by offering pro bono or in-kind support

Partnering with organisations that offer us in-kind or pro bono support provides much more than advice or product donation. These partnerships exemplify the power of community care, inviting and inspiring other organisations across Australia to join us in creating a supportive environment for families with a sick or premature baby.

Lander & Rogers' Pro Bono Support Empowers Life's Little Treasures Foundation

Life's Little Treasures Foundation has significantly benefitted from its partnership with Lander & Rogers, a law firm deeply committed to caring for the community through its pro bono work. Lander & Rogers' lawyers provide LLTF with legal advice, contract drafting and consulting services, ensuring we can remain focused on our core mission of supporting families in hospital and when they finally transition home with their little treasure.

By helping us navigate legal issues and complexities, Lander & Rogers enables us to dedicate more time and resources to providing vital support to families when they need it most. Lander & Rogers' commitment to providing pro bono support to charities like ours sets a powerful precedent for collective contributions to a fairer society. By replicating such partnerships, we can improve lives and bring about positive social change.

Thread the Word's Heartfelt Contribution to Life's Little Treasures Foundation

Thread the Word - a family business based in Victoria - has become a crucial source of support for Life's Little Treasures Foundation through their thoughtful in-kind contributions. Founded by Peter and Annie, Thread the Word specialises in lovingly crafting quality blankets, each serving as a unique symbol of care and warmth. Generously donating 1200 blankets annually, these are a much-loved item within LLTF's Precious Prem Packs.

Our Precious Prem Packs serve to extend a warm welcome to new parents navigating the challenges of neonatal care. This considerate gift provides comfort, guidance and practical assistance during a challenging time, where many families may be feeling not only emotionally distraught but also significant financial strain as they spend most of their days in hospital or caring for their sick or premature baby. Thread the Word's blankets embody our shared commitment to supporting these families in need.

Our partnership with Thread the Word not only underscores the significance of community care but also highlights how non-monetary contributions can make a tangible difference to the lives of premature and sick babies and their families across Australia.
